Illinois Teachers Back Ann Williams in State House Race

Chicago - In another significant boost to her grassroots campaign, Ann Williams today earned the endorsement of the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT) in the race for the 11th District State Representative seat.

The IFT represents more than 103,000 teachers and staff statewide, and is the parent organization of the Chicago Teachers Union (CTU).

Following on the heels of Williams' endorsement by the AFL-CIO, the IFT announcement marks another major win for Ann in what is quickly becoming one of the most closely watched races of Illinois' short primary season.

"I am honored to have the voices of 100,000 teachers supporting me," Williams said. "The IFT's endorsement reflects my commitment to ensuring that all Illinois students are provided with the best learning environment possible and the highest quality education."

Williams, a former assistant attorney general and legislative point person for Lisa Madigan, is fast distinguishing herself as a viable and independent-minded advocate for reform, whose many years of public service demonstrate her commitment to the people rather than to the political power brokers or special interests.

In addition to the AFL-CIO and IFT, Williams continues to earn the endorsements of many of Illinois' most respected leaders: Ann Williams Endorsements

But the endorsement that matters most to Ann Williams is yours. With little more than a month to go before the February 2nd primary, your support is needed more than ever.
